Wilson Records head honcho Fabio Monesi has quickly carved out a solid reputation through a unique, ruff-n-ready sound that land somewhere between vintage, dusty Chicago-Disco-House and analogue-driven hardware techno.

Most of his releases have landed on his own Wilson Records, a vinyl only imprint that has also housed records from Chicago pioneers Gene Hunt and Jordan Fields, as well as a few select EPs on labels that share his aesthetic like L.I.E.S.'s Russian Torrent Versions and Creme Organization.

The fascination and the attraction for all the different shades of electronic music bring Fabio to explore new territories, and to release music under different monikers constantly, making Fabio one of the most prolific producers of the recent years.

Whether it be via a no bullshit DJ set or his own take on a live set, Fabio remains consistent in drawing his audiences back, time and time again, Assuring to be constantly in-demand as a DJ at some of World's best clubs
